CUSTOM DENTAL NIGHTGUARDS

WHAT IS SLEEP BRUXISM (TEETH GRINDING)?

Sleep bruxism (teeth grinding) is a stress-related sleep disorder that manifests itself in teeth grinding and jaw clenching while sleeping. It's the body's natural response to releasing excess stress while we sleep. While stress relief sounds healthy in theory, in reality bruxism can result in a variety of dental and medical issues, including moderate to severe tooth wear and damage, tooth, jaw, facial and neck pain, headaches and sleep disruption.

It is estimated that 60 million people in the U.S. grind their teeth and experience symptoms severe enough to require treatment. When diagnosed early, teeth grinding can be treated before it causes permanent damage.

There are no medications available to treat sleep bruxism. The most common treatment is the use of a nightguard, a dental product that protects the teeth and reduces muscle strain. However, most nightguards are bulky, don't fit well and are uncomfortable.

SIGNS AND SYMPTOMS OF BRUXISM:

- Teeth that are worn, flattened, fractured or chipped
- Tooth pain and sensitivity
- Teeth grinding loud enough to be heard
- Jaw pain and jaw muscle tightness
- Facial pain and earaches
- Headaches and neck stiffness
- Chewing on inside of cheeks
- Loose or moving teeth
- Frequent sleep disruption

You may have sleep bruxism and be unaware of it until complications develop. If any of these signs and symptoms are affecting you, please ask your dentist about Dreamgard.
